V-seal is a program for processing and packaging flower seeds. Its object is to dry the seed to an unusually low point and to keep it dry in specially fabricated pouches in order to maintain high germination and vitality. Seeds deteriorates mainly as the result of exposure to high or varying humidity. The higher the humidity the quicker the deterioration. At very low humidities seed maintains its ability to germinate for incredible lengths of time even when the normal life span might be only a single season.

V-Seal means to you that your seed are dried promptly and scientifically upon harvest. The seed is dried to the point at which it keeps best, a different point for different seeds. Once sealed the pouch maintains the low relative humidity until it is opened. Because deterioration of seed is arrested as soon as harvested vitality is maintained at a high level and, in addition to high germination the seedlings will have more vigor. There is less chance of seed borne disease. This means that your seedsman can supply you with even the more difficult items with the assurance that germination will be high. And if for some reason you do not get the seed sown you can carry it over with assurance.

Items marked with the asterisk * are supplied in V- Seal.
